But Chinnu, the mouse, was in the house. He heard the noise.

He was afraid. He shook and trembled. But he did not move. He was quiet. He was still.

After some time the house was very silent. There was no noise. Chinnu came out.

He turned his head, left and right. He sniffed the air... up and down. Then he looked for something else to bite.