The wind carried Veera to a quiet pond. Veera met a water lily.

The wind carried Veera high up to a cold mountain. Veera met a pine tree.

At last, the wind carried Veera to a small garden. The garden had soft soil, enough water, air and sunlight. So, Veera settled happily in the soil and began to grow into a healthy little plant.

