"Excellent! You drive very well," Appa praised me.

We reached Thatha's house and jumped down from the cart. Thatha looked at me, smiled and said, "Wow! You have grown up!" He went inside the house and brought out new clothes. I wore it.

Food was ready. We ate till we were full and played traditional games of Tamil people happily. In the evening, we set out to watch a street play. Sitting on the sand by the river, we saw the play. We also had snacks.

Later, we walked under the light of the full moon and reached home while singing songs.

Oh! What a happy day!
